South Koreans Plunge Into Red Territory

Troops Stab 30 Miles Past Border

U.S. Planes, Ships Covering Advance

TOKYO, Oct. 2.—South Korean troops, aided by U. S. planes and warships, captured the coastal town of Kansong tonight in a mounting drive 30 miles inside Communist North Korea beyond the 38th Parallel.

The push, that crashed through Korea's five-year-old Iron Curtain, was being pressed by two divisions of the Korean republic's resurgent army up the eastern seaboard.

Its ultimate aim was to crush Red rule in the north and reunify the war-torn Asiatic country whose northern neighbors are Soviet Siberia and Communist China.

A third South Korean division reached the parallel Monday and a fourth was approaching it in a widening liberation offensive started at about the time Gen. Douglas MacArthur broadcast a demand for the enemy's unconditional surrender.

Rearguard resistance by a Communist battalion was shattered as a regiment of the South Korean third division captured the North Korean town of Kansong, astride the eastern shoreline rail-highway artery.

THE OCCUPATION of Kansong, 30 miles north of the 38th Parallel, was reported at 9:30 Monday night by International News Service War Correspondent Lee Ferrero who was with the South Korean troops north of the border.

Ferrero's dispatch told of several thousand Red soldiers captured by the South Koreans in their swift drive into the enemy's home territory.

The Communist war prisoners said two Red divisions and a security brigade had retreated all the way up to the major North Korean eastern port of Wonsan, 80 air miles and 90 road miles above the 38th Parallel.

Three Communist battalions were left behind to wage delaying rearguard actions against the advancing South Koreans. One of these battalions was met and flung into retreat at Kansong.

The ROK (Republic of Korea) Third Division's troops covered the 30 miles of North Korean terrain up to Kansong in less than 36 hours.

These forces previously had captured the North Korean coastal towns of Yangyang and Choson, respectively 10 and 14 miles north of the artificial border which for five years has split Korea in two.

At Kansong the South Koreans were within 50 air miles south of Wonsan, their apparent big objective.

Farther inland, the ROK Capital Division swept across the 38th Parallel to a depth of more than ten miles inside North Korea. It then linked up its east wing units at Yangyang with the

Woman Faints As Court Reads Prison Sentence

There was a flurry of excitement in Pickaway County common pleas court Saturday when a woman fainted after being sentenced to a women's reformatory.

She was Mrs. Ruth Knece, 44, of South Washington street, indicted by the September grand jury on two counts of issuing checks without sufficient funds.

She pleaded guilty to the accusations, and Judge William D. Radcliff sentenced her to 1-3 years in Ohio State Women's Reformatory in Marysville on each count. The sentences are to run concurrently.

Judge Radcliff also committed Donald Neff, 19, of Circleville Route 1 to Lima State hospital for the Criminally Insane for a 60-day observation period.

Neff was indicted by the grand jury for arson.

John Jeffery, 24, of Clendenen, W. Va., was placed on probation for three years. He was indicted by the grand jury for auto larceny.

LIBERATION FROM THE REDS and a tin of U. S. Army C-rations in the bargain, leaves this Korean civilian bewildered but happy. His benefactor is U. S. Marine Ralph E. Kessler.

2,000 Bodies Unburied In Shell-Shattered Seoul

SEOUL, Oct. 2.—Mayor Ki Poong Lee estimated today that at least two thousand bodies remain unburied in shell-shattered Seoul and speeded plans for their burial to prevent spread of disease.

The mayor conferred with members of a United Nations commission and with Marshall Plan officials on an emergency feeding program and public health measures.

As Mayor Ki outlined the problems facing Seoul, he declared that "it took many years to build up Seoul, but I don't now how many years it will take to rebuild it."

He said that first estimates indicate fully fifty percent of the city is demolished, including most of the large department stores, office buildings and many government structures.

"Fully one-third of the residential sections of Seoul is destroyed. It is impossible to estimate how many people are homeless," he said.

THE MAYOR declared there is no water due to damage to mains and at present the only source of water was wells, many of them of questionable sanitary condition.

United States Army trucks were slowly making their way through the city's littered streets spraying disinfectant on rubble-strewn sidewalks. Some Koreans scrambled in fright from the white clouds of spray.

As the city returned to some semblance of normal 450 trained policemen arrived to augment the skeleton force already on duty.

The mayor cautioned the police to deal with the populace with "sympathy and understanding, but be firm with Communists."

Besides the shortage of food, water and housing, the mayor said that there will be many weeks before electric power is available for private users.

The public transportation system of this city of more than a million also has been knocked out completely.

Trolley cars, riddled with bullets, dot the streets. Trolley and power wires dangle from shattered poles and create a driving hazard.

Commissioner Has Faith In Divining Rod

Faith in the power of the divining rod is running low among Pickaway County commissioners.

Only Commissioner Lyman Penn remains as staunch believer.

It's not that the commissioners don't believe the divining rod will find water. There's a well at the Children's Home and another at the new county dog pound to show that there must be a little truth to it all.

But, as Commissioner William Goode puts it, "they don't last. The one at the Children's home is petering out, and after only three years."

An Unbeliever, is what Penn calls him.

The commissioners learned Monday that the well at the west end of the Children's Home is running dry. Another well must be dug.

According to Penn, and his

ONLY STUMBLING BLOCK: RED DELEGATION

UN Hammering Out Pattern To Give All Of Korea Full, Free Government

LAKE SUCCESS, Oct. 2.—The United Nations is hammering out Korea's future today as a sovereign, independent government amid strong and unreserved support for Gen. Douglas MacArthur's moves to win complete victory.

The 60-member political committee of the General Assembly has before it an eight-power peace blueprint for Korea calling for a powerful UN commission.

The group would take over the task of preparing elections and restoring law and order throughout Korea in cooperation with the unified command.

The only stumbling block to swift completion of the United Nations peace blueprint is the Soviet bloc and master-minded by Russian Foreign Minister Andrei Vishinsky.

The keynote for the UN attitude in heartily endorsing any MacArthur action in Korea to get the military phase over with was set by a top official who said:

"The North Korean Communists had no scruples on June 25 about crossing the 38th Parallel. They made that distinctly a military matter."

"For the same reason, it is solely the business of the United Nations commander-in-chief to make certain that the military victory in Korea is total, irrevocable and without favor or conditions. If the Russians want an argument, they can call on MacArthur or blow off steam here at Lake Success all this week."

It is recognized at the UN that at least a year or more may be necessary as an intervening timetable for stabilizing the situation sufficiently to permit the UN commission to order all but South Korean constabulary troops withdrawn, particularly from the northern regions.

The main concern of the political committee at present is to overcome the Soviet bloc's delay and obstruction maneuvers on the eight-power plan and send it to the assembly for final action in the next several days.

A nine-power United Nations commission for Korea is in mind. The Russians and their satellites can be expected to denounce it as illegal and to refuse to join in its membership. Refusal by the Russians two years ago to recognize the original UN commission for Korea resulted in denial of all access across the 38th Parallel.

On the whole, MacArthur's broadcast to the North Koreans to surrender Saturday night was hailed and endorsed by practically all non-Communist delegates.

UN Secretary General

Trygve Lie sent couriers with copies of the surrender broadcast to all 60 assembly delegations, including the Russians.

Lie added his own hopes that peace and order would be re-established quickly in Korea so that as many lives as possible might be spared.

Sir Gladwyn Jebb of Britain, president of the Security Council for the month of September, declared:

"We believe that responsibility for the war in Korea, with all its horrors, rests with those who caused it."

Arne Sunde, Norwegian delegate and one of the council members, declared:

"I hope that the North Koreans will comply with MacArthur's call for surrender to restore peace and security in Korea. The disintegration of the North Korean army is imminent; our victory is complete."

France's Jean Chauvel said of the surrender call:

"The French delegation hopes that this appeal will put to an end the bloodshed and help to realize the measures which are sought by the United Nations to endure establishment of a Korean democratic, independent, unified state."

The Soviet delegation refused to answer calls in query to the MacArthur demand for surrender and all efforts to reach them proved unavailing.

Tom Byrd, Girl Friend Are Victims

4 Other Wrecks Reported Here

A Circleville man and a Columbus girl were killed and five others injured late Saturday when the car in which they were riding struck a concrete bridge about 13 miles south of Circleville.

Fatally injured in the crash were Thomas Richard Byrd, 23, of 842 Maplewood avenue, and Fay Heath, 16, of Columbus, whom Byrd had accompanied to a dance in Chillicothe.

The pair was among 25 persons who met their deaths in accidents last weekend in Ohio, including 14 others in traffic mishaps.

One died of fumes from a fumigating fluid, another was burned to death and one woman was drowned. Another person was killed in an explosion.

State highway patrol and civil aeronautics authorities have stepped into an investigation of the crash of a private plane on a farm near Columbus where a pilot was killed and two passengers were injured.

The pilot of the two-engine plane was Roger Shook, 42, of Columbus. Injured were Paul Jonas, 52, Mutual Broadcasting System sportscaster of New Milford, N. J., and Joe Williams, 58, sports editor of the New York World-Telegram-Sun. Lester Scott, 47, of New York, director for basketball at Madison Square Garden, another passenger, was not injured.

THE CRASH AND explosion of the plane came just after the take-off from the private landing field, according to State Patrolman Charles Watters of Circleville, who aided the investigation.

In addition, a 22-year-old Washington C. H. Route 1 man lay near death Monday in White Cross hospital, Columbus, of injuries received in a traffic crash involving three cars and a truck just west of Circleville.

Deputy Sheriff Mack Wise identified the man as Pearl Williams, who suffered a fractured skull in the smashup.

Another man, identified as Harold King, 21, of Granville Route 1, was injured seriously in a mishap on Valley View Hill north of Circleville.

Chillicothe state highway patrolmen said the accident fatal to the local man and the Columbus girl occurred at about 11:50 p. m. Saturday at a concrete bridge spanning Blackwater Creek on Route 23.

The patrol said the car in which the pair was killed swerved the south abutment of the bridge and reportedly spewed all eight occupants of the car to the highway.

Driver of the auto was identified as Clifford Henry, 32, of Columbus, who was reported in "fairly good" condition at noon Monday in Chillicothe hospital.

Controversial Measures Face Circleville Council

Circleville's lawmakers will have at least one controversial measure to wax oratorical over Tuesday evening.

For the second time in as many meetings the city fathers will be faced with a bill to bolster the sagging special police fund.

Last meeting council softened its attitude toward the police department just enough to appropriate $35 to the special police fund.

The sum was just sufficient to cover an amount overdrawn from the fund.

The lawmakers last meeting indicated they would invite Police Chief William McCrady to Tuesday's session to explain what his financial needs might be.

Chief McCrady said Monday that he might show up, "but I don't know for sure."

The solons Tuesday may also find before them a bill to prohibit parking in front of school buildings.

Civil Defense Parley Opens In Washington

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2.—A "grass roots" conference on civil defense opened here today and some 40 state officials will get a two-day indoctrination on methods of coping with an A-bomb attack.

James J. Wadsworth, acting national civil defense director, summoned the state defense chiefs to the capitol to study the recently issued "blueprint" for a nationwide organization of millions of volunteer workers.

Closed sessions were scheduled today with officials from states west of the Mississippi while those from eastern states, Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands will meet tomorrow with Wadsworth and his staff.

All 48 states have now set up some kind of civil defense unit in line with warnings from the National Security Resources Board.

The two-day meeting will cover virtually every aspect of an A-bomb emergency—air raid warning systems, medical services, mutual aid programs, training of volunteers, and the role of the military in civil defense.

Wadsworth said it probably will take two years at least to put the sweeping civil defense program into full operation.

This Guy Won't Be Judge Again

NEW YORK, Oct. 2.—Fifty-four-year-old Joseph W. Blees apparently believes that one should never give up a field of endeavor in which he is successful.

Blees, alias Joseph Baker, was considered a civic leader in Amityville Harbor, L. I., and a highly-successful businessman with a $20,000 annual income until police started asking him questions.

Today they are holding him for New Jersey authorities on a warrant charging he pocketed fines collected from 1940-1948 during three terms as an elected justice of the peace. He was planning to become a police judge in Amityville Harbor.

ORDERS FOR ACTIVE DUTY are read by Pfc. Melroy Dahmer to his wife and ten children at their New Orleans home. The ex-street sweeper, who will get $187.50 Army pay and allowance, holds one-year-old Ura Marie. In Mrs. Dahmer's arms is 4-months baby Shelton. The eldest of the brood is Geraldine (rear, left), 14.

HULL ISSUES WARNING

'Double Alert' Sounded For Anti-Commie Fight

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2.—Former Secretary of State Cordell Hull observed his 79th birthday today by asking the free nations of the world to be doubly alert to the dangers of Communism.

The elder statesman and architect of the United Nations pointed out that "grave difficulties and dangers still confront us on all sides."

His warning was issued from the quiet of his modest hotel apartment where, with his wife, Hull is living the life of a "citizen in retirement."

Despite his usually unbroken silence on world events, Hull could not refrain from his delight at the fact that the Korean aggression has proven the effectiveness of the UN.

Hull declared that far more serious days may lie ahead than the Korean crisis, which he said, may prove to be a "minor skirmish."

IT IS THE TIME, Hull said, for a "double alert" among the free nations of the world.

Quietly, the elder statesman added that he would like to see "these older nations" of the world "get on fire with the spirit of liberty as we used to."

Such action is necessary, Hull said, to "protect all that is precious as long as these threatening elements persist."

When a reporter asked about the apparent reluctance of some free European states to take adequate defense measures, Hull responded that they need but look at Czechoslovakia "and that considerable list of other nations that are functioning like slaves."

"That," the ex-secretary added, "ought to serve as a warning to do their part to save the world situation."

Another reporter asked the former secretary of state what he thinks of the conduct of foreign policy now. Hull replied that he does not pay too much attention to details—and that is why his health continues to improve.

In fact, he looked far better than when he returned from the Bethesda Naval Hospital, where he spent almost two years following what was described as a cerebral hemorrhage.

Doctors then, as they had in 1944, despaired of his life. In the earlier attack, which led to his retirement as secretary of state, Hull suffered complete exhaustion.

Ebright Books Circleville Visit

Don H. Ebright, Republican candidate for governor, has scheduled a ten-county tour this week including Circleville.

The state treasurer was in Cleveland Monday and will be in Lakewood and Warren Tuesday, Fremont Wednesday, Coshocton and Columbus Thursday, Highland County Friday, and the eleventh congressional district Saturday. The district caravan will make stops in Circleville, Chillicothe, Logan and Lancaster.

Tom Byrd, Girl Friend Are Victims

In addition to the two who were killed and the driver, were: Jane Henry, 27, of Columbus; Leon Byrd, 22, of Columbus; and Betty Henry, 28, all of 300 Huston street; and Myrtle Skelton, 23, of 586 East Franklin street.

BYRD AND Miss Heath were pronounced dead on arrival in Chillicothe hospital.

The driver was admitted in the hospital with internal injuries, along with Jane Henry and Leon Byrd.

Jane Henry suffered forehead abrasions and internal injuries and is reported in "fairly good" condition; and Leon Byrd suffered internal injuries and also is reported "fairly good."

Milton Henry was released following treatment for a right arm abrasion and Betty Henry was released following treatment for minor skin abrasions.

Myrtle Skelton was reported uninjured in the mishap.

Deputy Wise said the accident in which the Washington C. H. man was injured occurred at about 12:30 a. m. Sunday at the first bridge west of the Scioto River, about a mile outside Circleville.

He said the Williamson auto was travelling east on Route 22 toward Circleville when it crashed head on into a auto being driven west by Earl McAbbe, 56, of Circleville Route 2.

Meanwhile, an auto driven west by Winfred Rigsby, 23, of Williamsport, stopped abruptly when the head on crash occurred and was smashed from the rear by a tractor-trailer outfit driven by Harold Tharp, 26, of Harrison.

After hitting the Rigsby car, the tractor-trailer outfit plunged to the left side of the road to crash into the bridge.

Williamson suffered a fractured skull in the crash and was given emergency treatment in Berger hospital. He was later transferred to White Cross hospital, Columbus, for surgery.

ALSO INJURED in the Williamson car were Earl Ovihold, 46, of Washington C. H., who suffered nose and chin lacerations and an injured right hand; and Esther Hastings of Williamsport, who suffered bruises.

Paul Grey, 21, of Columbus, was listed in "fair" condition in Berger hospital Monday following a one-car accident at 10:45 p. m. Saturday on Valley View Hill.

Deputy Wise said Grey was a passenger in an auto driven by Harold King, 21, also of Columbus.

Wise said the King auto was out of control for 450 feet, and had rolled over for 32 feet of the distance.

Grey suffered a fractured nose in the crash while Melvin Reaper, 21, of Columbus, another passenger, was bruised.

King was fined $25 and costs later in the court of Magistrate Oscar Root for reckless operation.

An attack of coughing was blamed for another accident at 3:45 p. m. Saturday on Route 23 about five miles south of town.

Deputy Sheriff Carl Radcliff said a tractor-trailer outfit operated north by Frederick Schickler, 39, of Cleveland, went out of control and plunged into the ditch to the right of Congo creek bridge when the driver suffered a coughing attack.

"He said he had to cough," Radcliff related, "and that the next thing he knew he was in the field."

The tractor-trailer outfit tilted over onto its side, the deputy said, and the driver suffered a face laceration.

LAST OF THE weekend accidents involved a car and a corner of a building at the Motel

Four members of local Post 134 were speakers Sunday during the Fall conference of District Seven of the American Legion in Chillicothe.

They were Robert P. Wallace, chairman of the 7th District Safety Committee; Mrs. Blanche Mutschman, district adjutant; E. C. Ebert, Pickaway County Legion commander; and Reynold Greene.

He said council passed a resolution to sell the tract several months ago, but that the resolution was not enough. An ordinance is required.

Two appropriation ordinances will be placed before the councilmen, Tuesday. One will call for a transfer of funds from the auto street repair fund to the service department for labor.

The other will be a bill to purchase $185 worth of foamite for the fire department. The foamite will be used to fight gasoline fires.

County Losing One Of Its Two State Patrolmen

Pickaway County will have only one state highway patrolman on duty after Wednesday.

State Highway Patrolman Charles Watters has been transferred from Pickaway County to duty with the patrol in Portsmouth, his hometown.

Watters' transfer whittles the state cop staff here down to one veteran State Highway Patrolman Clyde Wells.

The transferring patrolman reported that no one has been assigned here to replace him and that no replacement is in sight for the near future.

Watters, who was on duty here for more than two years, will join his wife and two children in their new home in Portsmouth.

Commissioner Has Faith In Divining Rod

story is corroborated by Commissioners Keller and Goode, the well at the Children's Home was dug on the site selected by a divining rod in the hands of an expert from Chillicothe.

"IT ISN'T everybody that can make the things work," said Penn, who places his faith in a forked stick cut from a peach tree.

In Pickaway County, Penn continued, the power of finding water by using a divining rod rests in former Probate Judge Sterling M. Lamb. It is Lamb who is credited with finding the proper site for a well at the dog pound.

To prove his statements, Penn said he would make arrangements for a water hunt Tuesday afternoon. But a phone call to Lamb provided information that the divining job had already been done.

Lamb said he had been called to the Home recently by Superintendent Winfield Koch, and the spots under which the water is supposed to lie have been marked.

"You wait," said Penn. "There'll be water."

Goode grinned.

Keller was silent.

ROK Third Division which thereupon sent a regiment dashing up to Kansong.

STILL FARTHER west, the ROK Sixth Division reached the boundary line and massed for a crossing, and on its west flank the ROK Eighth Division came within easy reach of the parallel.

American Fifth Airforce planes throughout Monday hammered at an enemy column of 75 vehicles, led by one tank, which sought to move down the coastal road from Changion, 28 miles northwest of Kansong.

The American airmen reported Monday night they had dispersed and practically destroyed the Red convoy.

American warships were lying just offshore, their guns ready to shell any Red forces that might seek to challenge the South Korean drive up the coast.

The South Korean Third Division began crossing the 38th Parallel at about midday Sunday under orders from a source not yet disclosed.

The march into the land from which the Communist hordes sprung their surprise invasion of South Korea last June 25 mounted steadily in power as it moved forward.

It came as monitors listened in vain for a reply from the Pyongyang Communist radio to MacArthur's ultimatum broadcast calling on all Red forces throughout Korea to lay down their arms.

Police Probe Burglary Jobs

Circleville police were notified Sunday of a burglary and an attempted break in Saturday night.

Stanley Peters of South Court street reported someone made off with nearly $20 worth of lumber from a redecoration job on West Main street sometime Saturday night.

Jack Hennis of 223 South Scioto street reported that someone had attempted to break into his home at about midnight. He said the would-be burglar had raised a window at the side of his house.

Ohio Schools Said Bulging At The Seams

"Ohio schools are bulging at the seams," said Harold J. Bowers when he addressed Circleville Rotary Club at its Thursday luncheon.

"The 60,000 additional children who have entered Ohio schools in 1949 and 1950 are housed in everything from 'quonset huts and garages to town halls and churches," according to the Ashville man who is the state director of teacher education and certification.

Bowers used as his topic, "Trends and problems of Education in 1950," and declared:

know only too well the weaknesses of our school system, but it is certainly not as bad as it has been pictured in several recent articles appearing in National magazines."

Bowers said the schools were only now reaping the harvest of the depression years when teachers were poorly paid, buildings kept unrepaid, and equipment not replaced plus the war years when industry with the appeal of high wages and Selective Service drained the ranks of teachers until almost 50 percent of them were using emergency certificate.

When a teacher is using an emergency certificate it means he is under-trained or not fully qualified, Bowers said.

He struck on optimistic note when he predicted the end of the teacher shortage.

"Ohio," he said, "is assured of teachers during the fifties. Selective Service is taking the younger men. Industry is already working full capacity and will not enlarge its ranks."

Under the law, Webster may be fined from $25 to $50.

The verdict is expected to be appealed to the highest court in the state.

tioners what they may do or not do along medical lines. The Pilgrims brought with them the germ of a free press.

"The Telephone Company Is A Good Place To Work"

Have you ever stood at the switchboard in a telephone building and watched the skilled operators putting through their calls? Their arms move quickly, smoothly, and here, indeed, is efficiency in action.

Frequently, some of these girls leave to get married. Other girls take their places. This is called "employment turnover". But even so, "turnover" in a telephone company is comparatively low.

Why?

If you talk to telephone people, they'll tell you the telephone company is a good place to work, and the facts will bear them out. Having a good place to work, getting vacations and holidays with pay, plus pleasant surroundings and other benefits—all this means a lot to telephone employees. It means a lot to you, too.

To you, it means telephone people who provide you with friendly, courteous, and efficient telephone service—service that is high in value, low in cost, and getting better all the time.

A BAD DICKER

WESTERN European countries, including England, are dicker with Russia for Russian wheat and coarse grains. They indicate they will take large additional quantities of wheat, rye, corn, oats and barley to feed human and animal populations.

This would be good policy in normal times. Trade helps to cement amicable relations between nations. But with Russia continuing on its course of infiltration, sabotage, satellite attacks on neighbors and a general application of planned world conquest, this dicker does not make sense.

Russia would be paid in money or in goods. Moscow is expected to hold out for finished goods, particularly machinery. That will hasten Russia's military preparedness. Thus Western Europe would be contributing to the event it seems to fear most—Russian conquest.

There are hints the Kremlin may have purposes still more subtle in mind. By exporting grain Russia may hope to wreck the West's price structure and throw more American surplus wheat into government granaries at increased expense to the taxpayers. That would contribute to the top Russian goal of putting America into an economic tailspin.

THE GOAL

THE ONLY thing worth sacrificing and dying for in Korea is the chance that the show of U. S. strength in that out-of-the-way place will avert another war. Otherwise American blood and money will be down a rathole.

There is evidently only one way to avert a war and that is for America to make itself appear fearsome to Russia. If the leaders in the Kremlin become convinced they cannot succeed with world conquest, they are not likely to make the attempt.

This poses a simple proposition—that America must prepare, and prepare fast. It must do so in a manner to let Moscow know that this nation's very great potential is ready to be applied at a moment's notice.

If the red leaders, coddling an ambition to conquer the world, become convinced that a fully prepared America stands in their way, they will realize they cannot succeed. Unless they draw their inspiration from lunatic stargazers, as Hitler did, that is.

A long era of peace and world order is worth fighting for.

If eating carrots will improve the eyesight, as claimed, what could a person eat to make him miss the sight of some current goings-on?

If you would lose a friend, do him two favors, said Ben Franklin. Where does that leave America's foreign policy?

George E. Sokolsky's

These Days

Anson Phelps Stokes was impelled to write an encyclopedic book on "Church and State in the United States." And then, perhaps out of modesty, he wrote a prolonged preface in which he justifies so tremendous an undertaking.

No other country has, throughout the whole of the three centuries of its existence, been so deeply concerned with religion and religious problems as those who settled upon this continent. We often forget that we have had as long an existence as a people before the Declaration of Independence as since.

So Dr. Stokes states his sixth reason for writing his book:

"The apparent threat to the stability of the family as the fundamental social unit, in certain recent changes in moral standards in the United States—due in a considerable degree to the lack of adequate moral and religious education of youth. This in turn goes back, in part to the separation of church and state, and is its most, if not its only, unfortunate result."

The issue raised here is particularly pertinent at this time when the United States has to present itself as more than a storehouse of mechanical gadgets to the rest of the world and to its own youth. Obviously, the concept of winning friends by bribery, gifts and dumping goods, while it has produced some betterments in the standards of living of other countries, has not won sure friendship for us. Nor have we impressed the Asiatic nations with our perfections based on automobiles, machine tools and similar mechanical devices.

India, for instance, has lived for centuries in the ideal of Gotama, who, having been a prince, became first a beggar and then the Buddha. Can a people who make a god of one who renounced wealth for poverty and fame for the beggar's bowl become enthusiastic about nylons and cosmetics, which can only be symbols of physical well-being but never of spiritual devotion? What can the "Voice of America" tell them of the spiritual phases of American life when it is illegal to teach of God and of the natural law to our children in our schools?

So Dr. Stokes, recognizing that our peril is that having rejected the idea that religious and moral teaching is as necessary for the child as acrobatics and shop-work, relates this weakness to our primary social problem, which is "the threat to the stability of the family as the fundamental social unit."

And this currently presses upon us in our effort to win friends and allies in a defense against an enemy who highlights our weaknesses. Our divorces, murders, exaggerated sex emphasis give the impression, certainly to Asia, as to much of Europe, of a disorderly people. The Russians call it "hooliganism," and it is not an ineffectual term.

Often, when I listen to the radio, I wonder if nothing ever happens in America but murder. Surely, there is nothing elevating in the constant emphasis on killing, even though the detective story is a non-controversial subject and the gangsters always lose in the end.

Children are not taught virtue by that means nor by the social recognition of legalized polygamy. Respect for parents, reverence for age and experience and wisdom, the balancing of responsibilities and obligations against rights, humility, charity, pity, compassion—these need to be

A Disorder Which is Hard For the Doctor to Diagnose

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

TWISTING of the small bowel is known as volvulus. This creates a dangerous form of bowel obstruction and one which must be corrected within 12 hours to prevent gangrene or death of the tissue of the bowel wall. Delaying operation for more than 12 hours reduces the chance of saving the patient by more than 50 per cent.

Unfortunately, the condition closely resembles, in its outward manifestations, acute appendicitis, inflammation of the pancreas, twisting of a hernia and peritonitis, and is often mistaken for one or another of the disorders which it imitates. It is worth noting that while volvulus is not a common disorder, it is estimated to account for blocking of the bowel in about seven out of 100 cases.

Scar Tissue
Twisting of the bowel may occur because of some inflammation which causes scar tissues to form within the abdominal cavity, fastening parts of the bowel together. These are known as adhesions. Tumors may also be responsible.

When twisting of the bowel occurs, it tends to cut off the circulation, both in the arteries and the veins. Even if this does not happen, the bowel will become swollen or distended, and put pressure on the blood vessels, so that in either case the blood flow will be cut off.

Produces Pain

Sometimes the twisting occurs in attacks. This produces paroxysms of pain. Between the attacks of pain there may be little or no discomfort. However, as the process continues, the symptoms get worse and pain becomes constant. In the early stages, bloating or swelling of the abdomen is not noticeable; as the condition continues, the abdomen becomes tender and swollen.

X-ray examination of the bowel, of course, will make prompt diagnosis possible. Both before and after operation, the doctor, as a rule, prescribes antibiotics to prevent and overcome infection, as well as giving injections of whole blood into a vein to help prevent and treat shock.

Whether it was male or female she was at first too dazed to know. It was tall, thin, and clad in men's overalls, very old and ragged and patched, and an equally ragged

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Answer: I know of no way in which you could test your breath to find out whether or not there is any odor. It would be a good plan to consult with your physician who will determine whether or not you are suffering from halitosis or bad odor of the breath.

CHAPTER TWENTY-ONE

OUTSIDE, the spring sunshine seemed to have chilled, and she hurried back along the path, anxious to get away from the little town before anyone stopped her to chat. She did not want to risk meeting Dr. McKenzie. The ethics of her profession demanded that she report the entire incident to Dr. McKenzie; in fact, she should have consulted him before obeying Philip Ellender's orders about Dr. Grinstead.

She should have gone straight to Dr. McKenzie's office with that small, terrifying bottle and its enigmatic yellow contents. She had known that all along. But with the picture so vividly before her of Dr. McKenzie holding Philip Ellender's wife close in his arms, with the inescapable knowledge of Dr. McKenzie's interest in Sanna—and hadn't Sanna said artlessly, "I made you a pudding, darling. Jay said I could."

She had gained the bridge path now, and the little town was well behind her. Beneath the impact of Sanna's words and the ugly picture they conjured up, she put both shaking hands over her face and leaned against the friendly trunk of a giant tree, until a fit of trembling passed.

There was a sickness in her heart. She couldn't believe that there was anything wrong with the pudding—she couldn't! But Philip, who obviously adored his wife, could! And she, who had fought so hard to deny the love in her heart for Dr. McKenzie—how could she doubt that Philip was in a much better position than she to know where suspicion should lodge?

How could she, she scolded herself savagely, go on loving a man so unworthy of any girl? A man who used position as shamelessly as he did? In her mind she knew that he was unworthy, but in that crazy, crying heart of hers, the need for him went on torturing her. That night, when his arms had held her close in a dance, her heart had been on tiptoe with delight at his touch. Oh, she was such a fool, such a fool, that there wasn't one single thing she could do about it, unless it would be to go away as far as she could where she would never see him again!

And she knew, even with the thought, how utterly hopeless, how impossible that was. She went on at last, walking slowly now, her head lowered, her hands jammed sharply into her pockets. And so it was that she was within a few feet of the apparition before she saw it.

It stood just at the left of the path, a few feet from where she must pass. It stood very still, drawn to its full height, its back to her. And she stood rooted to the spot, staring at it with eyes that all but refused to take it in.

Whether it was male or female she was at first too dazed to know. It was tall, thin, and clad in men's overalls, very old and ragged and patched, and an equally ragged shirt revealed sticklike brown arms.

"Why, you fool," she told herself at last, trying to laugh. "It's a scarecrow."

But it wasn't. What farmer would stick up a scarecrow here in these woods, where nothing save the mountain trees and underbrush would grow?

Her eyes traveled up the thing and came to rest, dumfounded, on the hat that crowned it. A woman's hat, expensive, smart, new; a hat that would have been perfectly at home in any smart fashion parade, and it crowned a wisp of gray hair.

The thing turned then, and Perry saw its face. It was a woman, very old, the wrinkled face nut-brown, the eyes small and twinkling beneath that beautiful, bizarre, incredible hat. Slung over one shoulder was a burlap bag, half full.

The old, wrinkled face split in a grin that showed empty gums and added the last final note to horror; a horror that had been building up along Perry's tortured, overstrained nerves all day. And as the sticklike arms, the clawlike hands moved toward her, Perry screamed with all her strength, and fled, faster than she had ever tried to run in all her life. She heard as she fled the shriek of high-pitched, eldritch laughter behind her, and the cracking of twigs as the hideous thing plunged madly after her.

It seemed to her, as she ran, her heart pounding in her breast, her lungs laboring, that it was all some horrible nightmare from which she would surely wake safe in her bed. But the sunlight lay all around her and she knew with a sick horror that it was not a nightmare but all hideously real.

And as she whirled around a turn in the path, she heard a voice calling her name and footsteps pounding toward her on the pine needle-strewn path. And then she saw him: a figure most blessedly real, most hearteningly comforting. She flung herself headlong into Jay McKenzie's outstretched arms and clung to him, sobbing, hearing his frantic voice in her ears.

"Darling!" His arms held her hard. "What is it? Stop screaming, darling. You're all right."

He shook her a little, his voice soothing, anxious, as she clung to him with frantic, shaking hands and tried to burrow her white face more deeply into his shoulder.

"Oh, Jay, that horrible old witch! Oh, Jay, I'm so scared," she babbled like a terrified child as she clung to him, forgetting everything but the blessed reality of his presence, the strength of his arms that held her: the way he had stepped into the nightmare just when it had seemed that that hideous creature would have overtaken her in some unimagined horror.

"Perry, sweet, stop. Stop it! Here, darling, tell me what's happened. Don't shake so; you're all right, honey. You're all right. Now tell me..."

Still clinging to him, pressing her body close in his arms and now at all aware of what she was doing, she tried to tell him of the apparition that had loomed suddenly before her and that had chased her.

Above her head, she heard Dr. McKenzie say in a tone of angry disgust, "So it's you, Miss McHittity. I might have known. You're going to get yourself locked up if you aren't careful."

A drawing, ancient voice, rich with amusement, said, "Now, Jay, don't go talking foolishness. Who's going to lock me up? Ain't a body got a right to go hunting yarks on her own land? Ain't my fault if some fool gal comes along and cuts up."

Trembling, still clinging to Dr. McKenzie as though afraid that if she let go for a moment he'd vanish and she'd be lost in terror again, Perry turned her head and shuddered.

The hideous old woman stood a few feet away, brushing leaves and twigs from the incongruous hat, frowning a little as she inspected a bit of leaf-mold on one of the crisp taffeta bows.

"Darned gal made me lose my hat," the old woman growled. "Nigh scared me to death, too, yelling and running like that. Law, what ails the gal, anyway?"

But as she peeped at Perry there was a twinkle in her eyes, and it was obvious that she was enjoying herself enormously.

"Perry, darling, this is Miss McHittity, a very famous character in these parts," said Dr. McKenzie, and seemed vastly content to go on holding Perry close in his arms, while she peered fearfully over her shoulder at the old woman. "She's a notable gatherer of herbs of medicinal properties for the big drug manufacturing companies."

"And as good a doctor as Jay McKenzie, any old day in the week," said Miss McHittity, cackling a little, showing toothy gums. "Reckon my yarks has done folks more good than all the cuttin' and sewin' they do on people down there to that hospital."

"Miss McHittity, you promised you'd cut my yarb-doctoring," Dr. McKenzie warned her sharply. She gave him a slyly innocent look.

"Well, who's sayin' I ain't?" she demanded. "Ain't no reason I can't gather yarks for the city doctors to mess with, is they?"

Dr. McKenzie looked as though he'd like to do something violent, but restrained himself, and Miss McHittity looked slyly at Perry and said in a wheedling voice, "I'm a right smart fortune-teller, honey. How'd you like for me to tell your fortune?"

Perry shuddered and tried to creep closer into Dr. McKenzie's arms; an effort impossible of accomplishment for all his obvious willingness to cooperate, because he was already holding her so closely she could scarcely breathe.

Anti-Franco Spanish Refugee Urges Loan Calls Aid to Spain Blow to Franco Grip
Special to Central Press

WASHINGTON—A loan to Spain by the United States government would eradicate Franco. Such is the startling view of one of the leading refugee Spanish Republicans in the United States. He is Eloy Vaquerio, one-time minister of the interior (in charge of police) and minister of health during the Spanish Republican regime. He now is lecturer of comparative literature at Columbia university.

"The reason for Franco's existence—all the world against Spain and no hope except in a 'strong man'—would disappear the moment American money came to the aid of the poverty-stricken Spanish people.

"They don't want Franco, but they have had nowhere to turn. Isolation and poverty have permitted Franco to grind them down. Yet they realize they have a place in the world, in the United Nations. The democratic world needs a democratic Spain.

"I do not agree with persons who believe honestly enough that money to Spain would be abdication of the democratic cause. If the American government sends competent men to Spain to see that the money goes for projects needed by the people, as in Greece, the Spanish people will be strengthened immeasurably and will gain new hope.

"A revitalized Spanish people will not tolerate regimes of either fascism or communism. The western people need a revitalized Spain to hold the line in Europe.

"I fought both right and left when I held office. I could foresee the folly of each. I urged my government to crush Franco when he defied it, but the government failed to act. That was fatal.

SERIES STARTS WEDNESDAY

Monster Yanks To See What Makes Phils Tick

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 2—The monster New York Yankees, who pick their teeth with their bats, are coming to town to see what makes the Phillies tick—and it may cost them the 1950 World Series to find out.

Seldom in baseball history has any team gone into Series Week so heavily favored as Casey Stengel's Yankees—destiny's brothers-in-law—who swept the pieces in the American League to win their second straight pennant and their tenth in the last 15 years. They've won a record 17 all told.

But no mere baseball team could beat the Whiz Kids yesterday, which won the National League flag in Brooklyn in a fantastic ten-inning closeout against the Dodgers, who broke their own hearts trying.

Robin Roberts, a likely starter against the Yankees' Allie Reynolds in the opening series game in Shibe Park Wednesday, pitched the Phils clear of a slump that had cost them nine of their ten previous games. And when Dick Sisler bopped the tenth-inning homer that meant a 4-to-1 victory and the pennant, instead of a probable pennant playoff with the Dodgers, Little Old Philadelphia just blew its top.

IT HAD GOOD reason to. Not only had it been counting on this pennant since before Sept. 1, when the Phils entered the final month seven full games in front, but Philadelphia had been without a flag close to 20 years—longer than any other two-team city in the majors.

And the last—and only other Phillie pennant—was back in 1915.

The Dodgers, a story in themselves, had won 13 of 16 to come from nine games off the pace on Sept. 19 to the point yesterday where they stood one behind with one to go. You should have heard that Brooklyn bench! They rode the tense Phils with everything but silver spurs.

"No fur coats to your wives!" the Dodger jockeys hollered.

"Cancel that order on that new car! No pennant for choke-ups."

Yeah, but the Phils wor the game.

Nobody knows what makes them win or lose. True, they lost Curt Simmons to the Army, a bad blow to their pitching.

A couple of guys got sick. The Phillies youngsters knew nothing of pacing themselves for a 154-game stretch, a stretch which saw them take the lead for keeps on July 25.

But still in all this was a question mark baseball team. It is going to be a strange and wonderful World Series. With the Yankees, things are often left to chance, but chance seems to be one of their players.

If Woodling or Bauer don't hit, Rizzuto does. If Rizzuto doesn't, Berra and DiMaggio do. If they don't, Mize or Johnson or Brown do, and if they don't, Coleman and Mape come through.

If Joe Page can't relieve, Tom Ferrick can, and if he can't the starter goes all the way.

REYNOLDS, Vic Raschi, Ed Lopat, Ed Ford and Tommy Byrne are, Yankee fans presume, one starting pitcher more than they'll need to wrap up the Series in four straight.

As for the Phils: Eddie Sawyer, the miracle manager, is a biology teacher. The catcher and third baseman are sick, the shortstop is too nervous, the second baseman is too young, the first baseman can't hit, the centerfielder can't throw, the other two outfielders can't run, and after Roberts there is no pitching at all. Jim Konstanty, the commuting relief pitcher, shouldn't count.

But, what a parlay that was yesterday, when the money rode!

It was 1-1. Three Phillie singles brought a run in the sixth but in the Dodger half Peeewe Reese hit a fly ball that stuck in the rightfield screen for an automatic homerun.

Came the Dodger ninth and lead-off man Cal Abrams walked. Reese punched him to second with a single, and when Duke Snider singled to center Dodger Third Base Coach Milton Stock waved Abrams home, knowing full well that Richie Ashburn is a bad thrower.

Centerfielder Ashburn knew this, too, but he forgot. He threw that ball to Catcher Stan Lopata so fast and so true Lopata actually had to stand there and wait for Abrams to put him out.

That left men on second and third and Roberts, becoming the 'st Phillie since Grover Alexander in 1915 to win 20 games, calmly walked Jack Robinson, got Carl Furillo on a pop up and Gil Hodges on a long fly.

Next inning, two on, and Sisler belted one off Don Newcombe into the stands for the ball game. Well, the Yanks clinched their pennant Friday, and you can't help liking them in the Series.

You can't help wondering though.

Babe Pockets More Winnings
WICHITA, Kas., Oct. 2—Chicago's Babe Didrikson Zaharias boasted $14,200 in 1950 cash earnings today with the addition of first prize money from her second Women's National Open golf tournament triumph.

Mrs. Zaharias posted a five-under-par 70 over the Wichita course Sunday for a 72-hole total of 291, tying the record for the $5,000 tourney.

Amateur Betsy Rawls of Austin, Tex., finished second with 300, nine strokes behind the Babe.

Little Series Count Knotted In Baltimore
BALTIMORE, Oct. 2—The Baltimore Orioles and the Columbus Redbirds are tied up 1-1 today in the Little World Series.

The Orioles scored an 8-1 victory over Columbus here yesterday. The third game will be played tonight in Baltimore and then the series moves to Columbus where it will be concluded when one of the teams has won four games.

Karl Drews went the route for Baltimore last night with a six-hitter. Harvey Haddix, top southpaw of the American Association, on an Army leave, started for the Redbirds and was charged with the loss.

George Byam hit two homers and a single and drove in four runs to set the pace for Baltimore. Butch Hoyt and Jay Knickerbocker also racked up Oriole homers. Larry Miggins homered for the Birds' only tally.

Baltimore, which lost 5-1 in the Saturday night series opener, connected with 13 hits while the Birds lammed out six.

'Big Fellows' Fall As Grid Season Opens

NEW YORK, Oct. 2—The "big fellows" may be in or a rough time this college football season.

The annual delight of belting down the major powers is in full swing with the season only two weeks young. The big question now is where the ax will fall next.

Notre Dame, which just scraped by North Carolina, 14 to 7, last weekend, comes up against Purdue Saturday and should not have as much trouble as it did against the Tarheels when it tries for its 40th straight victory.

The Boilermakers fared as badly as most of the Big Ten operatives in their season inaugurals. Purdue bowed to Texas, 43 to 26. But the rest, including co-titlists Michigan and Ohio State, did no better.

Michigan, which meets Dartmouth in its next game, was dumped, 14 to 7, by Michigan State in the big upset of the day. The Indians, meanwhile, were held to a surprising 21-to-21 tie by Holy Cross.

Ohio State's Rose Bowl champions bowed to Southern Methodist, 32 to 27.

IN ADDITION to the tremendous upset pulled by the Michigan State Spartans, there were some other eye-openers.

Mississippi State downed highly-regarded Tennessee, 7 to 0; South Carolina topped Georgia Tech, 7 to 0, and Alabama swept Tulane, 26 to 14.

Tennessee draws a tough opponent this week. The Vols meet powerful Duke, 28-to-14 victors over Pitt. Michigan State plays Maryland, 35-to-21 winner over Navy.

Army and Oklahoma rolled merrily on their winning ways. The Cadets made it 21 games without a loss when they topped Colgate, 28 to 0, while the Sooners stopped Boston College, 28 to 0, for their 22nd straight win.

California, UCLA and Stanford looked good on the coast with easy wins. The Golden Bears beat Oregon, 28 to 7. Stanford walloped San Francisco, 55 to 7, and UCLA belted Washington State, 42 to 0.

Other scores throughout the nation:

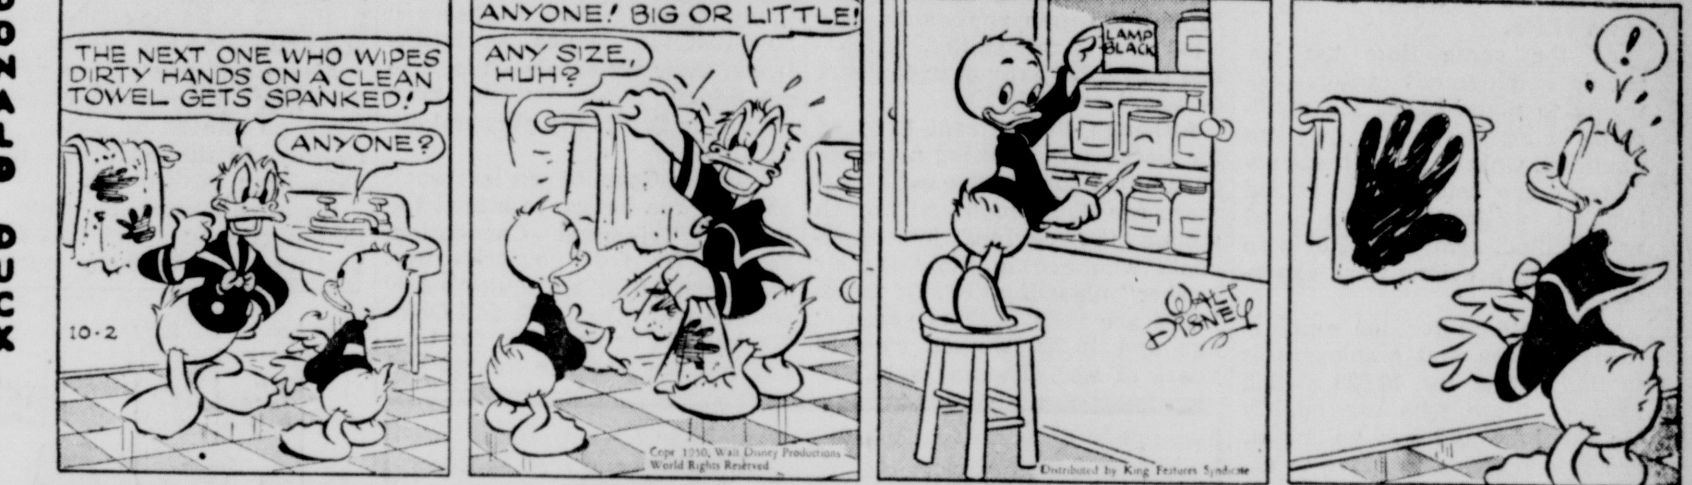

Cornell 27, Lafayette 0; Penn State 34, Georgetown 14; Penn 21, Virginia 7; Princeton 66, Williams 0; Vanderbilt 41, Auburn 0; Kentucky 27, Mississippi 0; Louisiana State 19, College of the Pacific 0; Clemson 34, Missouri 0; Indiana 20, Nebraska 20; Oklahoma A and M 13, Texas Christian 7; Rice 27, Santa Clara 7.

Yankees Quoted 2-1 Favorites

NEW YORK, Oct. 2—The New York Yankees rule 2-to-1 favorites today to win the 1950 World Series from the Philadelphia Phillie Whiz Kids.

Published odds placed the world champions as an even money choice to end the Series without losing more than one game.

The Series gets underway in Philadelphia Wednesday. The teams will play the second game in Shibe Park and then move to New York's Yankee Stadium Friday, Saturday and Sunday for games 3 and 4 and 5, if necessary.

Ohio Employers Have Difficulty Finding Skilled Workers

BUC Says Supply Here Is Nil

Older People Have Opportunity

Ohio's labor market is gradually shaping up into a situation where employers are finding it difficult to locate workers with specific skills despite the fact that more than 89,000 persons are seeking work through the 82 employment centers of the Bureau of Unemployment Compensation.

According to C. C. Thomas, local BUC manager, employers have placed 1,917 job openings; the bureau's statewide job clearance through which they hope to find workers they are unable to locate in their own cities.

At the same time the bureau's employment centers are trying to place 89,000 job applicants in jobs for which they are qualified. Only 10,023 of these applicants are listed in the skilled bracket, while 44,249 are listed as unskilled, semi-skilled or with little or no previous work experience.

The problem for the employment centers and employers is to find out of the 10,000 skilled workers those who can qualify for the jobs and are willing or are in a position to move to another city to take the jobs. Thomas said that in Pickaway County practically no skilled workers have applied for jobs.

TYPICAL OF THE placement problems facing employers and the bureau's employment centers is the current demand for 260 stenographers in three cities and overseas. In one city 100 stenographers are needed and the employers specify an age limit of 20 to 35 years, with unmarried women preferred.

"The bureau's statewide analysis shows there are 10,352 women applicants for clerical and sales jobs, but only 6,384 meet the employers' age specifications," Thomas said, adding:

"From the latter group the employment centers must attempt to find 100 stenographers who not only qualify for the jobs but also are willing or able to leave home to accept the jobs."

"At the same time the employment centers must attempt to find 100 stenographers willing to work in Alaska, Japan or Europe, and 60 wanted in two other Ohio cities."

"Out of the 37,571 women job applicants, only 923 are skilled—

A PICKAWAY COUNTIAN IN DENMARK

BY BETTY JEAN RIDDLE

It's been a beautiful day, bright blue sky, a few fluffy clouds and unusually still. Fall is in the air, there's a crisp feeling and the trees are beginning to change to their Autumn colors.

Denmark still has its beautiful flowers—all the gardens are dressed in flaming scarlets, yellows and orange.

The Danes are also preparing for cold weather. Men are fixing their underground silos for the sugar beets and tops, rushing to finish the Fall plowing (they plow twice in each plot in the Fall) and plant the wheat. One will find the woman of the house busily canning those last few tomatoes, cucumbers and late plums. She will also be reminding the men that they must dig those potatoes.

In the afternoon and evening the knitting needles are clicking a mile a minute to finish that woolen underwear. In fact many of them have put on the first layer of that "scratchy stuff."

THE CHILDREN here at Tyngsgaard wear one woolen and one cotton undershirt, then their dress or suit and usually a sweater over that in the house. I'm wondering how they walk around when it really gets cold.

They have fire in the little stoves, but I dare say most of you would be sitting on top of them. Once before I observed how fast the Danes work between their six meals—it isn't to get things done, but to keep warm, or that is my personal observation.

I was in Copenhagen last week and the one before to attend the ACWW Triannual Convention. Women from 23 countries met for seven days. Met quite a few women from the U. S. and Ohio. We had old home week, for they had left the states in August and were eager for news about anything.

The IFYE delegate in Sweden, Rachel Johnson of Kentucky, came down for the conference and the delegate in Holland, Marie Book of Iowa, came up with some Dutch women.

Everything was going along smoothly until Marie came down with the flu. She was in bed at the hotel for seven days, with yours truly as nurse, and then took a plane to Amsterdam.

We introduced baked potatoes to the menu. Marie said that was what she wanted when she was feeling better, so I made up my mind we'd have them. I went to the kitchen and tried to explain, but they couldn't understand even though they said, "Yes, yes."

I was about to do them myself, when a voice said, "Hello."

IT HAPPENED to be the son of the hotel owner whom I had met the evening before. He had just returned from England and is waiting for permission to come to the U. S. So he spoke English and translated my wishes.

Afterward, when I was back in the room, it dawned on me that since no one is admitted, supposedly, to the kitchen, I might have been thrown out.

We have stayed so much in that particular hotel that I feel that we own about one fourth of it and they probably thought I was one of the cooks, for I was always in the kitchen opening fruit juice for Marie.

Mr. Lecour Jensen has taken us with him on several tours of the 4-H gardens. The boys and girls were about 12 to 14 years old and have been tending the gardens all summer. Most of them are on small farms about 10 to 16 acres.

The older children have sugar beets. We visited each garden four times during the Summer and gave them points for the work. They can accumulate a total of 100, and the one receiving the most points for the Summer is given a small prize.

They also have books very similar to ours in which they draw a diagram of the garden and record the number of hours they worked. Some of the gardens are at the small schools and the school masters help them with the work. They take some of the produce home and some of it is used by the girls in the school kitchens.

THE SCHOOLS are very interesting and they all have complete kitchens and work shops. Boys and girls start using them about 11 years of age and are very adept by the time they finish school at 14.

They go to school six days a week and have a much more in-

South Koreans Plunge Into Red Territory

Troops Stab 30 Miles Past Border

U.S. Planes, Ships Covering Advance

TOKYO, Oct. 2—South Korean troops, aided by U. S. planes and warships, captured the coastal town of Kansong tonight in a mounting drive 30 miles inside Communist North Korea beyond the 38th Parallel.

The push, that crashed through Korea's five-year-old Iron Curtain, was being pressed by two divisions of the Korean republic's resurgent army up the eastern seaboard.

Its ultimate aim was to crush Red rule in the north and reunify the war-torn Asiatic country whose northern neighbors are Soviet Siberia and Communist China.

A third South Korean division reached the parallel Monday and a fourth was approaching it in a widening liberation offensive started at about the time Gen. Douglas MacArthur broadcast a demand for the enemy's unconditional surrender.

Rearguard resistance by a Communist battalion was shattered as a regiment of the South Korean third division captured the North Korean town of Kansong, astride the eastern shoreline rail-highway artery.

THE OCCUPATION of Kansong, 30 miles north of the 38th Parallel, was reported at 9:36 Monday night by International News Service War Correspondent Lee Ferrero who was with the South Korean troops north of the border.

Ferrero's dispatch told of several thousand Red soldiers captured by the South Koreans in their swift drive into the enemy's home territory.

The Communist war prisoners said two Red divisions and a security brigade had retreated all the way up to the major North Korean eastern port of Wonsan, 80 air miles and 90 road miles above the 38th Parallel.

Three Communist battalions were left behind to wage delaying rearward actions against the advancing South Koreans. One of these battalions was met and flung into retreat at Kansong.

The ROK (Republic of Korea) Third Division's troops covered the 30 miles of North Korea, terrain up to Kansong in less than 36 hours.

These forces previously had captured the North Korean coastal towns of Yangyang and Choson, respectively 10 and 14 miles north of the artificial border which for five years has split Korea in two.

At Kansong the South Koreans were within 50 air miles south of Wonsan, their apparent big objective.

Farther inland, the ROK Capital Division swept across the 38th Parallel to a depth of more than ten miles inside North Korea. It then linked up its east wing units at Yangyang with the (Continued on Page Two)

Woman Faints As Court Reads Prison Sentence

There was a flurry of excitement in Pickaway County common pleas court Saturday when a woman fainted after being sentenced to a women's reformatory.

She was Mrs. Ruth Knece, 44, of South Washington street, indicted by the September grand jury on two counts of issuing checks without sufficient funds.

She pleaded guilty to the accusations, and Judge William D. Radcliff sentenced her to 1-3 years in Ohio State Women's Reformatory in Marysville on each count. The sentences are to run concurrently.

Judge Radcliff also committed Donald Neff, 19, of Circleville Route 1 to Lima State hospital for the Criminally Insane for a 60-day observation period.

Neff was indicted by the grand jury for arson.

John Jeffery, 24, of Clendenen, W. Va., was placed on probation for three years. He was indicted by the grand jury for auto larceny.

LIBERATION FROM THE REDS and a tin of U. S. Army C-rations in the bargain, leaves this Korean civilian bewildered but happy. His benefactor is U. S. Marine Ralph E. Kessler.

2,000 Bodies Unburied In Shell-Shattered Seoul

SEOUL, Oct. 2—Mayor Ki Poong Lee estimated today that at least two thousand bodies remain unburied in shell-shattered Seoul and speeded plans for their burial to prevent spread of disease.

The mayor, conferred with members of a United Nations commission and with Marshall Plan officials on an emergency feeding program and public health measures.

As Mayor Ki outlined the problems facing Seoul, he declared that "it took many years to build up Seoul, but I don't now how many years it will take to rebuild it."

He said that first estimates indicated fully fifty percent of the city is demolished, including most of the large department stores, office buildings and many government structures.

"Fully one-third of the residential sections of Seoul is destroyed. It is impossible to estimate how many people are homeless," he said.

THE MAYOR declared there is no water due to damage to mains and at present the only source of water was wells, many of them of questionable sanitary condition.

United States Army trucks were slowly making their way through the city's littered streets spraying disinfectant on rubble-strewn sidewalks. Some Koreans scrambled in fright from the white clouds of spray.

As the city returned to some semblance of normal 450 trained policemen arrived to augment the skeleton force already on duty.

The mayor cautioned the police to deal with the populace with "sympathy and understanding, but be firm with Communists."

Besides the shortage of food, water and housing, the mayor said that there will be many weeks before electric power is available for private users.

The public transportation system of this city of more than a million also has been knocked out completely.

Trolley cars, riddled with bullets, dot the streets. Trolley and power wires dangle from shattered poles and create a driving hazard.

The Navy chief said: "U. S. ships have found a great many floating mines—some of them Russian—which have been recently laid in Korean waters and their condition indicates that they have not been long out of a warehouse."

The admiral also outlined the size of the fleet which will be reached by June 30, 1951. He said U. S. naval strength would consist of 20 carriers, 200 destroyers, 75 submarines, 118 mine and patrol craft, 256 amphibious craft and 255 auxiliary vessels.

He said that the Navy hopes to have a total of 7,334 aircraft at that time.

Sherman reported that to man a fleet of that size the Navy will require slightly over 500,000 men plus a Marine Corps of 128,000 men.

NEW STRAITSVILLE, Oct. 2—A double wedding is in store for Mrs. Linda Eva Williams Waddell, 37, and her 78-year-old mother, Mrs. Emma Williams.

Mrs. Williams is to wed an 80-year-old retired miner, William McCormick. Her daughter will be married to another retired miner, Charles Byers, who is 76. When the licenses were issued here, McCormick referred to the younger man, his prospective son-in-law, as "Sonny."

Second U.S. Navy Ship Damaged By Sea Mine

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2—The Navy disclosed today that another U. S. warship has been damaged by a floating mine in Korean waters and suffered "some fatalities."

Adm. Forrest P. Sherman, Chief of Naval Operations, pointed out that the vessel is the second U. S. warship to be damaged by a mine. The Destroyer Brush recently struck a mine and nine men were killed.

Sherman told the House Armed Services Committee that some of the mines found floating in Korean waters were Russian. He said their condition indicated they recently were put there.

ONLY STUMBLING BLOCK: RED DELEGATION

UN Hammering Out Pattern To Give All Of Korea Full, Free Government

LAKE SUCCESS, Oct. 2—The United Nations is hammering out Korea's future today as a sovereign, independent government amid strong and unreserved support for Gen. Douglas MacArthur's moves to win complete victory.

The 60-member political committee of the General Assembly has before it an eight-power peace blueprint for Korea calling for a powerful UN commission.

The group would take over the task of preparing elections and restoring law and order throughout Korea in cooperation with the unified command.

The only stumbling block to swift completion of the United Nations peace blueprint is the Soviet bloc and master-minded by Russian Foreign Minister Andrei Vishinsky.

The keynote for the UN attitude in heartily endorsing any MacArthur action in Korea to get the military phase over with was set by a top official who said:

"The North Korean Communists had no scruples on June 25 about crossing the 38th Parallel. They made that distinctly a military matter."

"For the same reason, it is solely the business of the United Nations commander-in-chief to make certain that the military victory in Korea is total, irrevocable and without favor or conditions. If the Russians want an argument, they can call on MacArthur or blow off steam here at Lake Success all this week."

It is recognized at the UN that at least a year or more may be necessary as an intervening timetable for stabilizing the situation sufficiently to permit the UN commission to order all but South Korean constabulary troops withdrawn, particularly from the northern regions.

The main concern of the political committee at present is to overcome the Soviet bloc's delay and obstruction maneuvers on the eight-power plan and send it to the assembly for final action in the next several days.

A nine-power United Nations commission for Korea is in mind. The Russians and their satellites can be expected to denounce it as illegal and to refuse to join in its membership. Refusal by the Russians two years ago to recognize the original UN commission for Korea resulted in denial of all access across the 38th Parallel.

On the whole, MacArthur's broadcast to the North Koreans to surrender Saturday night was hailed and endorsed by practically all non-Communist delegates.

SCHOOLS HAVE DUTY, TOO? Controversial Measures Face Circleville Council

Circleville's lawmakers will have at least one controversial measure to wax oratorical over Tuesday evening.

For the second time in as many meetings the city fathers will be faced with a bill to bolster the sagging special police fund.

Last meeting council softened its attitude toward the police department just enough to appropriate $35 to the special police fund.

The sum was just sufficient to cover an amount overdrawn from the fund.

The lawmakers last meeting indicated they would invite Police Chief William McCrady to Tuesday's session to explain what his financial needs might be.

Chief McCrady said Monday that he might show up, "but I don't know for sure."

The solons Tuesday may also find before them a bill to prohibit parking in front of school buildings.

ACCORDING to City Solicitor George Gerhardt the ban would be in force only during school hours. He added that the ordinance is the brain child of Councilman Joe Brink.

"If the ordinance is drawn up, and if council passes it, it should then be made clear to the school board that they have a part to play in making the streets safer for children," Gerhardt said.

Trygve Lie sent couriers with copies of the surrender broadcast to all 60 assembly delegations, including the Russians.

Lie added his own hopes that peace and order would be re-established quickly in Korea so that as many lives as possible might be spared.

Sir Gladwyn Jebb of Britain, president of the Security Council for the month of September, declared:

"We believe that responsibility for the war in Korea, with all its horrors, rests with those who caused it."

Arne Sunde, Norwegian delegate and one of the council members, declared:

"I hope that the North Koreans will comply with MacArthur's call for surrender to restore peace and security in Korea. The disintegration of the North Korean army is imminent; our victory is complete."

France's Jean Chauvel said of the surrender call:

"The French delegation hopes that this appeal will put to an end the bloodshed and help to realize the measures which are sought by the United Nations to ensure establishment of a Korean democratic, independent, unified state."

The Soviet delegation refused to answer calls in query to the MacArthur demand for surrender and all efforts to reach them proved unavailing.

State highway patrol and civil aeronautics authorities have stepped into an investigation of the crash of a private plane on a farm near Columbus where a pilot was killed and two passengers were injured.

The pilot of the two-engine plane was Roger Shook, 42, of Columbus. Injured were Paul Jonas, 52, Mutual Broadcasting System sportscaster of New Milford, N. J., and Joe Williams, 58, sports editor of the New York World-Telegram-Sun. Lester Scott, 47, of New York, director for basketball at Madison Square Garden, another passenger, was not injured.

THE CRASH AND explosion of the plane came just after the take-off from the private landing field, according to State Patrolman Charles Watters of Circleville, who aided the investigation.

In addition, a 22-year-old Washington C. H. Route 1 man lay near death Monday in White Cross hospital, Columbus, of injuries received in a traffic crash involving three cars and a truck just west of Circleville.

Deputy Sheriff Mack Wise identified the man as Pearl Williams, who suffered a fractured skull in the smashup.

Another man, identified as Harold King, 31, of Granville Route 1, was injured seriously in a mishap on Valley View Hill north of Circleville.

Chillicothe state highway patrolmen said the accident fatal to the local man and the Columbus girl occurred at about 11:50 p. m. Saturday at a concrete bridge spanning Blackwater Creek on Route 23.

The patrol said the car in which the pair was killed side-swiped the south abutment of the bridge and reportedly spewed all eight occupants of the car to the highway.

Driver of the auto was identified as Clifford Henry, 32, of Columbus, who was reported in "fairly good" condition at noon Monday in Chillicothe hospital.

HULL ISSUES WARNING

'Double Alert' Sounded For Anti-Commie Fight

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2—Former Secretary of State Cordell Hull observed his 79th birthday today by asking the free nations of the world to be doubly alert to the dangers of Communism.

The elder statesman and architect of the United Nations pointed out that "grave difficulties and dangers still confront us on all sides."

His warning was issued from the quiet of his modest hotel apartment where, with his wife, Hull is living the life of a "citizen in retirement."

Despite his usually unbroken silence on world events, Hull could not refrain from his delight at the fact that the Korean aggression has proven the effectiveness of the UN.

Hull declared that far more serious days may lie ahead than the Korean crisis, which he said, may prove to be a "minor skirmish."

IT IS THE TIME, Hull said, for a "double alert" among the free nations of the world.

Quietly, the elder statesman added that he would like to see "these older nations" of the world "get on fire with the spirit of liberty as we used to."

Such action is necessary, Hull said, to "protect all that is precious as long as these threatening elements persist."

When a reporter asked about the apparent reluctance of some free European states to take adequate defense measures, Hull responded that they need but look at Czechoslovakia "and that considerable list of other nations that are functioning like slaves."

That, the ex-secretary added, "ought to serve as a warning to do their part to save the world situation."

Another reporter asked the former secretary of state what he thinks of the conduct of foreign policy now. Hull replied that he does not pay too much attention to details—and that is why his health continues to improve.

In fact, he looked far better than when he returned from the Bethesda Naval Hospital, where he spent almost two years following what was described as a cerebral hemorrhage.

Doctors then, as they had in 1944, despaired of his life. In the earlier attack, which led to his retirement as secretary of state, Hull suffered complete exhaustion.

Tom Byrd, Girl Friend Are Victims

In addition to the two who were killed and the driver, were: Jane Henry, 27, of Columbus; Leon Byrd, 22, of Columbus; Betty Henry, 28, all of 300 Huston street; and Myrtle Skelton, 23, of 586 East Franklin street.

BYRD and Miss Heath were pronounced dead on arrival in Chillicothe hospital.

The driver was admitted in the hospital with internal injuries, along with Jane Henry and Leon Byrd.

Jane Henry suffered forehead abrasions and internal injuries and is reported in "fairly good" condition; and Leon Byrd suffered internal injuries and also is reported "fairly good."

Milton Henry was released following treatment for a right arm abrasion and Betty Henry was released following treatment for minor skin abrasions.

Myrtle Skelton was reported uninjured in the mishap.

Deputy Wise said the accident in which the Washington C. H. man was injured occurred at about 12:30 a. m. Sunday at the first bridge west of the Scioto River, about a mile outside Circleville.

He said the Williamson auto was travelling east on Route 22 toward Circleville when it crashed head-on into a auto being driven west by Earl McAbbe, 56, of Circleville Route 2.

Meanwhile, an auto driven west by Winfred Rigby, 23, of Williamsport, stopped abruptly when the head-on crash occurred and was smashed from the rear by a tractor-trailer outfit driven by Harold Tharp, 26, of Harrison.

After hitting the Rigby car, the tractor-trailer outfit plunged to the left side of the road to crash into the bridge.

Williamson suffered a fractured skull in the crash and was given emergency treatment in Berger hospital. He was later transferred to White Cross hospital, Columbus, for surgery.

ALSO INJURED in the Williamson car were Earl Ovihood, 46, of Washington C. H., who suffered nose and chin lacerations and an injured right hand; and Esther Hastings of Williamsport, who suffered bruises.

Paul Grey, 21, of Columbus, was listed in "fair" condition in Berger hospital Monday following a one-car accident at 10:45 p. m. Saturday on Valley View Hill.

Deputy Wise said Grey was a passenger in an auto driven by Harold King, 21, also of Columbus.

Wise said the King auto was out of control for 450 feet, and had rolled over for 32 feet of the distance.

Grey suffered a fractured nose in the crash while Melvin Reaper, 21, of Columbus, another passenger, was bruised.

King was fined $25 and costs later in the court of Magistrate Oscar Root for reckless operation.

An attack of coughing was blamed for another accident at 3:45 p. m. Saturday on Route 23 about five miles south of town.

Deputy Sheriff Carl Radcliff said a tractor-trailer outfit operated north by Frederick Schickler, 39, of Cleveland, went out of control and plunged into the ditch to the right of Congo creek bridge when the driver suffered a coughing attack.

"He said he had to cough," Radcliff related, "and that the next thing he knew he was in the field."

The tractor-trailer outfit tilted over onto its side, the deputy said, and the driver suffered a face laceration.

Controversial Measures Face Circleville Council

teachers at crossings when children are leaving school buildings," Gerhardt continued, adding:

"They could see to it that the children crossed only with the light. After all, the teachers have control of the children until they reach home and once more come under parental sway."

"It used to be that way when I went to school, at any rate. If we got into a fight on the way home, it was the teacher who administered the whipping."

"But what I'm getting at is that any law to make the streets safer for children must be a joint effort of council and the school board. Council could pass laws from now on in, but unless action is taken by school authorities, they could mean nothing to the children."

"You can't expect them to interpret the law. It's up to the school authorities to see that the law is obeyed, at least in front of school buildings."

Commissioner Has Faith In Divining Rod

story is corroborated by Commissioners Keller and Goode, the well at the Children's Home was dug on the site selected by a divining rod in the hands of an expert from Chillicothe.

"IT ISN'T everybody that can make the things work," said Penn, who places his faith in a forked stick cut from a peach tree.

In Pickaway County, Penn continued, the power of finding water by using a divining rod rests in former Probate Judge Sterling M. Lamb. It is Lamb who is credited with finding the proper site for a well at the dog pound.

To prove his statements, Penn said he would make arrangements for a water hunt Tuesday afternoon. But a phone call to Lamb provided information that the divining job had already been done.

Lamb said he had been called to the Home recently by Superintendent Winfield Koch, and the spots under which the water is supposed to lie have been marked.

"You wait," said Penn. "There'll be water."

Goode grinned.

Keller was silent.

Troops Stab 30 Miles Past Border

ROK Third Division which thereupon sent a regiment dashing up to Kansong.

STILL FARTHER west, the ROK Sixth Division reached the boundary line and massed for a crossing, and on its west flank the ROK Eighth Division came within easy reach of the parallel.

American Fifth Airforce planes throughout Monday hammered at an enemy column of 75 vehicles, led by one tank, which sought to move down the coastal road from Changjon, 28 miles northwest of Kansong.

The American airmen reported Monday night they had dispersed and practically destroyed the Red convoy.

American warships were lying just offshore, their guns ready to shell any Red forces that might seek to challenge the South Korean drive up the coast.

The South Korean Third Division began crossing the 38th Parallel at about midday Sunday under orders from a source not yet disclosed.

The march into the land from which the Communist hordes sprung their surprise invasion of South Korea last June 25 mounted steadily in power as it moved forward.

It came as monitors listened in vain for a reply from the Pyongyang Communist radio to MacArthur's ultimatum broadcast calling on all Red forces throughout Korea to lay down their arms.

Mrs. Margaret Blair, 1057 D East Oregon St., Evansville, Ind., says her husband and three children keep her busy from morning 'til night. It wasn't too long ago that Mrs. Blair thought she had more work than she could handle—said she was tired and nervous all the time but today, thanks to HADACOL, her household is like a breeze because her system was deficient in Vitamins B1, B2, Niacin, and Iron.

Here is Mrs. Blair's statement: "Before I started taking HADACOL I was nervous, overweight and had trouble sleeping. My food did not agree with me. Seemed like I was jumpy and irritable all the time. My back bothered me a lot and I couldn't sleep, and when I did doze off at night, I would wake up in the morning feeling like I hadn't had a drop of rest. My mother noticed how bad I looked and she suggested I take HADACOL. After I started taking HADACOL I began to notice a difference right away. Now I sleep well, my nerves are steady, my disposition is 100% better and I actually enjoy my food. Life certainly is wonderful—now that I am taking HADACOL."

Feeling
Yes, do as thousands of other folks have done who have had trouble with indigestion, stomach disturbances (gas, heartburn, sour "risings") after meals, as well as that general run-down condition, if your system lacks Vitamins B1, B2, Iron, and Niacin.

HADACOL is being recommended by many doctors. HADACOL is so amazingly successful because it acts directly to relieve the cause of your trouble when due to such deficiencies. That's the kind of product you want—the kind you should buy—the kind you should start taking immediately.

There Is Only One HADACOL.
Don't go through life suffering such fiendish torture from your stomach, when relief may be as close at hand as your nearest drugstore. Buy HADACOL today. Trial size bottle only $1.25. Ohio Schools Said Bulging At The Seams

"Ohio schools are bulging at the seams," said Harold J. Bowers when he addressed Circleville Rotary Club at its Thursday luncheon.

"The 60,000 additional children who have entered Ohio schools in 1949 and 1950 are housed in everything from quonset huts and garages to town halls and churches," according to the Ashville man who is the state director of teacher education and certification.

Bowers used as his topic, "Trends and problems of Education in 1950," and declared:

know only too well the weaknesses of our school system, but it is certainly not as bad as it has been pictured in several recent articles appearing in National magazines."

Bowers said the schools were only now reaping the harvest of the depression years when teachers were poorly paid, buildings kept unrepared, and equipment not replaced plus the war years when industry with the appeal of high wages and Selective Service drained the ranks of teachers until almost 50 percent of them were using emergency certificate.

When a teacher is using an emergency certificate it means he is under-trained or not fully qualified, Bowers said.

He struck on optimistic note when he predicted the end of the teacher shortage.

"Ohio," he said, "is assured of teachers during the fifties. Selective Service is taking the younger men. Industry is already working full capacity and will not enlarge its ranks."

"The Telephone Company Is A Good Place To Work"

Have you ever stood at the switchboard in a telephone building and watched the skilled operators putting through their calls? Their arms move quickly, smoothly, and here, indeed, is efficiency in action

Frequently, some of these girls leave to get married. Other girls take their places. This is called "employment turnover". But even so, "turnover" in a telephone company is comparatively low.

Why?

If you talk to telephone people, they'll tell you the telephone company is a good place to work, and the facts will bear them out. Having a good place to work, getting vacations and holidays with pay, plus pleasant surroundings and other benefits—all this means a lot to telephone employees. It means a lot to you, too.

To you, it means telephone people who provide you with friendly, courteous, and efficient telephone service—service that is high in value, low in cost, and getting better all the time.

A BAD DICKER

WESTERN European countries, including England, are dicker with Russia for Russian wheat and coarse grains. They indicate they will take large additional quantities of wheat, rye, corn, oats and barley to feed human and animal populations.

This would be good policy in normal times. Trade helps to cement amicable relations between nations. But with Russia continuing on its course of infiltration, sabotage, satellite attacks on neighbors and a general application of planned world conquest, this dicker does not make sense.

Russia would be paid in money or in goods. Moscow is expected to hold out for finished goods, particularly machinery. That will hasten Russia's military preparedness. Thus Western Europe would be contributing to the event it seems to fear most—Russian conquest.

There are hints the Kremlin may have purposes still more subtle in mind. By exporting grain Russia may hope to wreck the West's price structure and throw more American surplus wheat into government granaries at increased expense to the taxpayers. That would contribute to the top Russian goal of putting America into an economic tailspin.

THE GOAL

THE ONLY thing worth sacrificing and dying for in Korea is the chance that the show of U. S. strength in that out-of-the-way place will avert another war. Otherwise American blood and money will be down a rathole.

There is evidently only one way to avert a war and that is for America to make itself appear fearsome to Russia. If the leaders in the Kremlin become convinced they cannot succeed with world conquest, they are not likely to make the attempt.

This poses a simple proposition—that America must prepare, and prepare fast. It must do so in a manner to let Moscow know that this nation's very great potential is ready to be applied at a moment's notice.

If the red leaders, coddling an ambition to conquer the world, become convinced that a fully prepared America stands in their way, they will realize they cannot succeed. Unless they draw their inspiration from lunatic stargazers, as Hitler did, that is.

A long era of peace and world order is worth fighting for.

If eating carrots will improve the eyesight, as claimed, what could a person eat to make him miss the sight of some current goings-on?

If you would lose a friend, do him two favors, said Ben Franklin. Where does that leave America's foreign policy?

George E. Sokolsky's

These Days

Anson Phelps Stokes was impelled to write an encyclopedic book on "Church and State in the United States." And then, perhaps out of modesty, he wrote a prolonged preface in which he justifies his tremendous undertaking.

No other country has, throughout the whole of the three centuries of its existence, been so deeply concerned with religion and religious problems as those who settled upon this continent. We often forget that we have had as long an existence as a people before the Declaration of Independence as since.

So Dr. Stokes states his sixth reason for writing his book:

"The apparent threat to the stability of the family as the fundamental social unit, in certain recent changes in moral standards in the United States—due in a considerable degree to the lack of adequate moral and religious education of youth. This in turn goes back, in part to the separation of church and state, and is its most, if not its only, unfortunate result."

The issue raised here is particularly pertinent at this time when the United States has to present itself as more than a storehouse of mechanical gadgets to the rest of the world and to its own youth. Obviously, the concept of winning friends by bribery, gifts and dumping goods, while it has produced some betterments in the standards of living of other countries, has not won sure friendship for us. Nor have we impressed the Asiatic nations with our perfections based on automobiles, machine tools and similar mechanical devices.

India, for instance, has lived for centuries in the ideal of Gotama, who, having been a prince, became first a beggar and then the Buddha. Can a people who make a god of one who renounced wealth for poverty and fame for the beggar's bowl become enthusiastic about nylons and cosmetics, which can only be symbols of physical well-being but never of spiritual devotion? What can the "Voice of America" tell them of the spiritual phases of American life when it is illegal to teach of God and of the natural law to our children in our schools?

So Dr. Stokes, recognizing that our peril is that having rejected the idea that religious and moral teaching is as necessary for the child as acrobatics and shop-work, relates this weakness to our primary social problem, which is "the threat to the stability of the family as the fundamental social unit."

And this currently presses upon us in our effort to win friends and allies in a defense against an enemy who highlights our weaknesses. Our divorces, murders, exaggerated sex emphasis give the impression, certainly to Asia, as to much of Europe, of a disorderly people. The Russians call it "hooliganism," and it is not an ineffectual term.

Often, when I listen to the radio, I wonder if nothing ever happens in America but murder. Surely, there is nothing elevating in the constant emphasis on killing, even though the detective story is a non-controversial subject and the gangsters always lose in the end.

Children are not taught virtue by that means nor by the social recognition of legalized polygamy. Respect for parents, reverence for age and experience and wisdom, the balancing of responsibilities and obligations against rights, humility, charity, pity, compassion—these need to be

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

TWISTING of the small bowel is known as volvulus. This creates a dangerous form of bowel obstruction and one which must be corrected within 12 hours to prevent gangrene or death of the tissue of the bowel wall. Delaying operation for more than 12 hours reduces the chance of saving the patient by more than 50 per cent.

Unfortunately, the condition closely resembles, in its outward manifestations, acute appendicitis, twisting of a hernia and peritonitis, and is often mistaken for one or another of the disorders which it imitates. It is worth noting that while volvulus is not a common disorder, it is estimated to account for blocking of the bowel in about seven out of 100 cases.

Scar Tissue
Twisting of the bowel may occur because of some inflammation which causes scar tissues to form within the abdominal cavity, fastening parts of the bowel together. These are known as adhesions. Tumors may also be responsible.

When twisting of the bowel occurs, it tends to cut off the circulation, both in the arteries and the veins. Even if this does not happen, the bowel will become swollen or distended, and put pressure on the blood vessels, so that in either case the blood flow will be cut off.

Produces Pain

Sometimes the twisting occurs in attacks. This produces paroxysms of pain. Between the attacks of pain there may be little or no discomfort. However, as the process continues, the symptoms get worse and pain becomes constant. In the early stages, bloating or swelling of the abdomen is not noticeable; as the condition continues, the abdomen becomes tender and swollen.

X-ray examination of the bowel, of course, will make prompt diagnosis possible. Both before and after operation, the doctor, as a rule, prescribes antibiotics to prevent and overcome infection, as well as giving injections of whole blood into a vein to help prevent and treat shock.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

C. L.: I have reason to believe that my breath has been very bad lately. Is there any way I can test my breath?
Answer: I know of no way in which you could test your breath to find out whether or not there is any odor. It would be a good plan to consult with your physician who will determine whether or not you are suffering from halitosis or bad odor of the breath.

Try, Stop Me

The Government of India, Information Service, intent upon proving to Americans that despite all sabre-rattling at Pakistan, they still have time to pass along a good story, released the following recent bulletin:

Two friends, Ammu and Din,

CHAPTER TWENTY-ONE

OUTSIDE, the spring sunshine seemed to have chilled, and she hurried back along the path, anxious to get away from the little town before anyone stopped her to chat. She did not want to risk meeting Dr. McKenzie. The ethics of her profession demanded that she report the entire incident to Dr. McKenzie; in fact, she should have consulted him before obeying Philip Ellender's orders about Dr. Grinstead. She should have gone straight to Dr. McKenzie's office with that small, terrifying bottle and its enigmatic yellow contents. She had known that all along.

But with the picture so vividly before her of Dr. McKenzie holding Philip Ellender's wife close in his arms, with the inescapable knowledge of Dr. McKenzie's interest in Sanna—and hadn't Sanna said artlessly, "I made you a pudding, darling, 'ay said I could."

She had gained the bridge path now, and the little town was well behind her. Beneath the impact of Sanna's words and the ugly picture they conjured up, she put both shaking hands over her face and leaned against the friendly trunk of a giant tree, until a fit of trembling passed.

There was a sickness in her heart. She couldn't believe that there was anything wrong with the pudding—she couldn't! But Philip, who obviously adored his wife, could! And she, who had fought so hard to deny the love in her heart for Dr. McKenzie—how could she doubt that Philip was in a much better position than she to know where suspicion should lodge?

How could she, she scolded herself savagely, go on loving a man so unworthy of any girl? A man who used position as shamelessly as he did? In her mind she knew that he was unworthy, but in that crazy, crying heart of hers, the need for him went on torturing her. That night, when his arms had held her close in a dance, her heart had been on tiptoe with delight at his touch. Oh, she was such a fool, such a fool! And there wasn't one single thing she could do about it, unless it would be to go away as far as she could where she would never see him again! And she knew, even with the thought, how utterly hopeless, how impossible that was.

She went on at last, walking slowly now, her head lowered, her hands jammed sharply into her pockets. And so it was that she was within a few feet of the apparition before she saw it.

It stood just at the left of the path, a few feet from where she must pass. It stood very still, drawn to its full height, its back to her. And she stood rooted to the spot, staring at it with eyes that all but refused to take it in.

Whether it was male or female she was at first too dazed to know. It was tall, thin, and clad in men's overalls, very old and ragged and patched, and an equally ragged shirt revealed sticklike brown arms. "Why, you fool," she told herself at last, trying to laugh. "It's a scarecrow."

But it wasn't. What farmer would stick up a scarecrow here in these woods, where nothing save the mountain trees and underbrush would grow?

Her eyes traveled up the thing and came to rest, dumfounded, on the hat that crowned it. A woman's hat, expensive, smart, new; a hat that would have been perfectly at home in any smart fashion parade, and it crowned a wispy knot of graying hair.

The thing turned then, and Perry saw its face. It was a woman, very old, the wrinkled face nut-brown, the eyes small and twinkling beneath that beautiful, bizarre, incredible hat. Slung over one shoulder was a burlap bag, half full.

The old, wrinkled face split in a grin that showed empty gums and added the last final note to horror: a horror that had been building up along Perry's tortured, overstrained nerves all day. And as the sticklike arms, the clawlike hands moved toward her, Perry screamed with all her strength, and fled, faster than she had ever tried to run in all her life. She heard as she fled the shriek of high-pitched, eldritch laughter behind her, and the cracking of twigs as the hideous thing plunged madly after her.

It seemed to her, as she ran, her heart pounding in her breast, her lungs laboring, that it was all some horrible nightmare from which she would surely wake safe in her bed. But the sunlight lay all around her and she knew with a sick horror that it was not a nightmare but all hideously real.

And as she whirled around a turn in the path, she heard a voice calling her name and footsteps pounding toward her on the pine needle-strewn path. And then she saw him: a figure most blessedly real, most hearteningly comforting. She flung herself headlong into Jay McKenzie's outstretched arms and clung to him, sobbing, hearing his frantic voice in her ears.

"Darling!" His arms held her hard. "What is it? Stop screaming, darling. You're all right!" He shook her a little, his voice soothing, anxious, as she clung to him with frantic, shaking hands and tried to burrow her white face more deeply into his shoulder.

"Oh, Jay, that horrible old witch! Oh, Jay, I'm so scared," she babbled like a terrified child as she clung to him, forgetting everything but the blessed reality of his presence, the strength of his arms that held her; the way he had stepped into the nightmare just when it had seemed that that hideous creature would have overtaken her in some unimagined horror.

"Perry, sweet, stop. Stop it! Here, darling, tell me what happened. Don't shake so; you're all right, honey. You're all right. Now tell me..."

SERIES STARTS WEDNESDAY

Monster Yanks To See What Makes Phils Tick

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 2—Those monster New York Yankees, who pick their teeth with their bats, are coming to town to see what makes the Phillies tick—and it may cost them the 1950 World Series to find out.

Seldom in baseball history has any team gone into Series Week so heavily favored as Casey Stengel's Yankees—destiny's brothers-in-law—who swept the pieces in the American League to win their second straight pennant and their tenth in the last 15 years. They've won a record 17 all told.

But no mere baseball team could beat the Whiz Kids yesterday, which won the National League flag in Brooklyn in a fantastic ten-inning closeout against the Dodgers, who broke their own hearts trying.

Robin Roberts, a likely starter against the Yankees' Allie Reynolds in the opening series game in Shibe Park Wednesday, pitched the Phils clear of a slump that had cost them nine of their ten previous games. And when Dick Sisler bopped the tenth-inning homer that meant a 4-to-1 victory and the pennant, instead of a probable pennant playoff with the Dodgers, Little Old Philadelphia just blew its top.

IT HAD GOOD reason to. Not only had it been counting on this pennant since before Sept. 1, when the Phils entered the final month seven full games in front, but Philadelphia had been without a flag close to 20 years—longer than any other two-team city in the majors.

And the last—and only other Phillie pennant—was back in 1915.

The Dodgers, a story in themselves, had won 13 of 16 to come from nine games off the pace on Sept. 19 to the point yesterday where they stood one behind with one to go. You should have heard that Brooklyn bench! They rode the tense Phillies with everything but silver spurs.

"No fur coats for your wives!" the Dodger jockeys hollered. "Cancel that order on that new car! No pennant for choke-ups."

Yeah, but the Phillies wor the game.

Nobody knows what makes them win or lose. True, they lost Curt Simmons to the Army, a bad blow to their pitching.

A couple of guys got sick. The Phillies youngsters knew nothing of pacing themselves for a 154-game stretch, a stretch which saw them take the lead for keeps on July 25.

But still in all this was a question mark baseball team. It is going to be a strange and wonderful World Series. With the Yankees, things are often left to chance, but chance seems to be one of their players.

If Woodling or Bauer don't hit, Rizzuto does. If Rizzuto doesn't, Berra and DiMaggio do. If they don't, Mize or Johnson or Brown do, and if they don't, Coleman and Mares come through.

If Joe Page can't relieve, Tom Ferrick can, and if he can't the starter goes all the way.

REYNOLDS, Vic Raschi, Ed Lopat, Ed Ford and Tommy Byrne are, Yankee fans presume, one starting pitcher more than they'll need to wrap up the Series in four straight.

As for the Phillies: Eddie Sawyer, the miracle manager, is a biology teacher. The catcher and third baseman are sick, the shortstop is too nervous, the second baseman is too young, the first baseman can't hit, the centerfielder can't throw, the other two outfielders can't run, and after Roberts there is no pitching at all. Jim Konstanty, the commuting relief pitcher, shouldn't count.

But, what a parlay that was yesterday, when the money rode!

It was 1-1. Three Phillie singles brought a run in the sixth but in the Dodger half Peeewe Reese hit a fly ball that stuck in the rightfield screen for an automatic homerun.

Came the Dodger ninth and lead-off man Cal Abrams walked. Reese punched him to second with a single, and when Duke Snider singled to center Dodger Third Base Coach Milton Stock waved Abrams home, knowing full well that Richie Ashburn is a bad thrower.

Centerfielder Ashburn knew this, too, but he forgot. He threw that ball to Catcher Stan Lopata so fast and so true Lopata actually had to stand there and wait for Abrams to put him out.

That left men on second and third and Roberts, becoming the 'st Phillie since Grover Alexander in 1915 to win 20 games, calmly walked Jack Robinson, got Carl Furillo on a pop up and Gil Hodges on a long fly.

Next inning, two on, and Sisler belted one off Don Newcombe into the stands for the ball game. Well, the Yanks clinched their pennant Friday, and you can't help liking them in the Series.

You can't help wondering though.

Babe Pockets More Winnings

WICHITA, Kas., Oct. 2—Chicago's Babe Didrikson Zaharias boasted $14,200 in 1950 cash earnings today with the addition of first prize money from her second Women's National Open golf tournament triumph.

Mrs. Zaharias posted a five-under-par 70 over the Wichita course Sunday for a 72-hole total of 291, tying the record for the $5,000 tourney.

Amateur Betsy Rawls of Austin, Tex., finished second with 300, nine strokes behind the Babe.

Little Series Count Knotted In Baltimore

BALTIMORE, Oct. 2—The Baltimore Orioles and the Columbus Redbirds are tied up 1-1 today in the Little World Series.

The Orioles scored an 8-1 victory over Columbus here yesterday. The third game will be played tonight in Baltimore and then the series moves to Columbus where it will be concluded when one of the teams has won four games.

Karl Drews went the route for Baltimore last night with a six-hitter. Harvey Haddix, top southpaw of the American Association, on an Army leave, started for the Redbirds and was charged with the loss.

George Byam hit two homers and a single and drove in four runs to set the pace for Baltimore. Butch Hoyt and Jay Knickerbocker also racked up Oriole homers. Larry Miggins homered for the Birds' only tally.

Baltimore, which lost 5-1 in the Saturday night series opener, connected with 13 hits while the Birds lammed out six.

'Big Fellows' Fall As Grid Season Opens

NEW YORK, Oct. 2—The "big fellows" may be in or a rough time this college football season.

The annual delight of belting down the major powers is in full swing with the season only two weeks young. The big question now is where the ax will fall next.

Notre Dame, which just scraped by North Carolina, 14 to 7, last weekend, comes up against Purdue Saturday and should not have as much trouble as it did against the Tarheels when it tries for its 40th straight victory.

The Boilermakers fared as badly as most of the Big Ten operatives in their season inaugurals. Purdue bowed to Texas, 43 to 26. But the rest, including co-titlists Michigan and Ohio State, did no better.

Michigan, which meets Dartmouth in its next game, was dumped, 14 to 7, by Michigan State in the big upset of the day. The Indians, meanwhile, were held to a surprising 21-to-21 tie by Holy Cross.

Ohio State's Rose Bowl champions bowed to Southern Methodist, 32 to 27.

IN ADDITION to the tremendous upset pulled by the Michigan State Spartans, there were some other eye-openers.

Mississippi State downed highly-regarded Tennessee, 7 to 0; South Carolina topped Georgia Tech, 7 to 0, and Alabama swept Tulane, 26 to 14.

Tennessee draws a tough opponent this week. The Vols meet powerful Duke, 28-to-14 victors over Pitt. Michigan State plays Maryland, 35-to-21 winner over Navy.

Army and Oklahoma rolled merrily on their winning ways. The Cadets made it 21 games without a loss when they topped Colgate, 28 to 0, while the Sooners stopped Boston College, 28 to 0, for their 22nd straight win.

California, UCLA and Stanford looked good on the coast with easy wins. The Golden Bears beat Oregon, 28 to 7. Stanford walloped San Francisco, 55 to 7 and UCLA belted Washington State, 42 to 0.

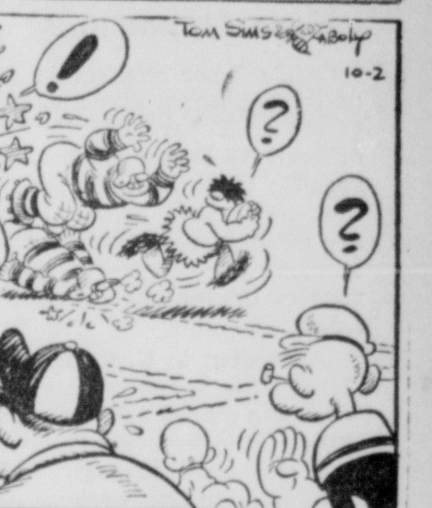

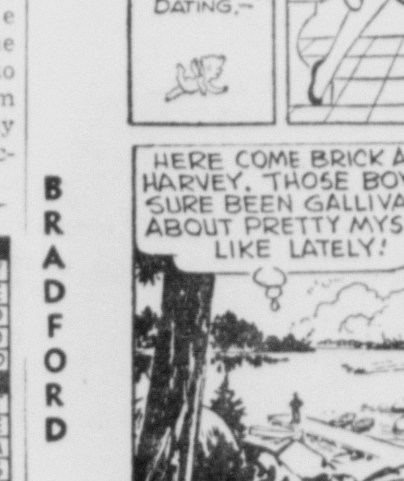

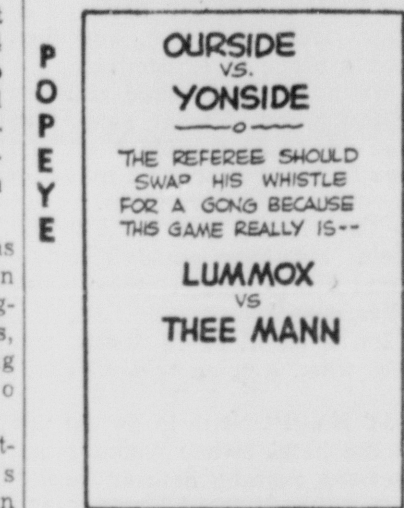

Other scores throughout the nation:
Cornell 27, Lafayette 0; Penn State 34, Georgetown 14; Penn 21, Virginia 7; Princeton 66, Williams 0; Vanderbilt 41, Auburn 0; Kentucky 27, Mississippi 0; Louisiana State 19, College of the Pacific 0; Clemson 34, Missouri 0; Indiana 20, Nebraska 20; Oklahoma A and M 13, Texas Christian 7; Rice 27, Santa Clara 7.

Yankees Quoted 2-1 Favorites

NEW YORK, Oct. 2—The New York Yankees rule 2-to-1 favorites today to win the 1950 World Series from the Philadelphia Phillies Whiz Kids.

Published odds placed the world champions as an even money choice to end the Series without losing more than one game.

The Series gets underway in Philadelphia Wednesday. The teams will play the second game in Shibe Park and then move to New York's Yankee Stadium Friday, Saturday and Sunday for games 3, 4 and 5, if necessary.

Ohio Employers Have Difficulty Finding Skilled Workers

BUC Says Supply Here Is Nil

Older People Have Opportunity

Ohio's labor market is gradually shaping up into a situation where employers are finding it difficult to locate workers with specific skills despite the fact that more than 89,000 persons are seeking work through the 82 employment centers of the Bureau of Unemployment Compensation.

According to C. C. Thomas, local BUC manager, employers have placed 1,917 job openings; the bureau's statewide job clearance through which they hope to find workers they are unable to locate in their own cities.

At the same time the bureau's employment centers are trying to place 89,000 job applicants in jobs for which they are qualified. Only 10,023 of these applicants are listed in the skilled bracket, while 44,249 are listed as unskilled, semi-skilled or with little or no previous work experience.

The problem for the employment centers and employers is to find out of the 10,000 skilled workers those who can qualify for the jobs and are willing or are in a position to move to another city to take the jobs. Thomas said that in Pickaway County practically no skilled workers have applied for jobs.

TYPICAL OF THE placement problems facing employers and the bureau's employment centers is the current demand for 260 stenographers in three cities and overseas. In one city 100 stenographers are needed and the employers specify an age limit of 20 to 35 years, with unmarried women preferred.

"The bureau's statewide analysis shows there are 10,352 women applicants for clerical and sales jobs, but only 6,384 meet the employers' age specifications," Thomas said, adding:

"From the latter group the employment centers must attempt to find 100 stenographers who not only qualify for the jobs but also are willing or able to leave home to accept the jobs.

"At the same time the employment centers must attempt to find 100 stenographers willing to work in Alaska, Japan or Europe, and 60 wanted in two other Ohio cities.

"Out of the 37,571 women job applicants, only 923 are skilled—

A PICKAWAY COUNTIAN IN DENMARK

BY BETTY JEAN RIDDLE

It's been a beautiful day, bright blue sky, a few fluffy clouds and unusually still. Fall is in the air, there's a crisp feeling and the trees are beginning to change to their Autumn colors.

Denmark still has its beautiful flowers—all the gardens are dressed in flaming scarlets yellows and orange.

The Danes are also preparing for cold weather. Men are fixing their underground silos for the sugar beets and tops, rushing to finish the Fall plowing (they plow twice in each plot in the Fall) and plant the wheat. One will find the woman of and only 300 of these are in the under-35 years of age bracket. Among the men applicants, only 9,100 are in the skilled group—and only 4,743 are under 45 years of age."

Although the current demand for workers is creating more opportunities for "older workers," there are 33,612 men and women among the current job applicants who are in the "older worker" classification. Of these, 17,324 are men over 45 years of age and 16,288 women over 35 years of age, Thomas said.

the house busily canning those last few tomatoes, cucumbers and late plums. She will also be reminding the men that they must dig those potatoes.

In the afternoon and evening the knitting needles are clicking a mile a minute to finish that woolen underwear. In fact many of them have put on the first layer of that "scratchy stuff."

THE CHILDREN here at Tyngsgaard wear one woolen and one cotton undershirt, then their dress or suit and usually a sweater over that in the house. I'm wondering how they walk around when it really gets cold.

They have fire in the little stoves, but I dare say most of you would be sitting on top of them. Once before I observed how fast the Danes work between their six meals—it isn't to get things done, but to keep warm, or that is my personal observation.

I was in Copenhagen last week and the one before to attend the ACWW Triannual Convention. Women from 23 countries met for seven days. Met quite a few women from the U. S. and Ohio. We had old home week, for they had left the states in August and were eager for news about anything.

The IFYE delegate in Sweden, Rachel Johnson of Kentucky, came down for the conference and the delegate in Holland, Marie Book of Iowa, came up with some Dutch women.

Everything was going along smoothly until Marie came down with the flu. She was in bed at the hotel for seven days, with yours truly as nurse, and then took a plane to Amsterdam.

We introduced baked potatoes to the menu. Marie said that was what she wanted when she was feeling better, so I made up my mind we'd have them. I went to the kitchen and tried to explain, but they couldn't understand even though they said, "Yes, yes."

I was about to do them myself, when a voice said, "Hello."

IT HAPPENED to be the son of the hotel owner whom I had met the evening before. He had just returned from England and is waiting for permission to come to the U. S. So he spoke English and translated my wishes.

Afterward, when I was back in the room, it dawned on me that since no one is admitted, supposedly, to the kitchen, I might have been thrown out.

We have stayed so much in that particular hotel that I feel that we own about one fourth of it and they probably thought I was one of the cooks, for I was always in the kitchen opening fruit juice for Marie.

Mr. Lecour Jensen has taken us with him on several tours of the 4-H gardens. The boys and girls were about 12 to 14 years old and have been tending the gardens all Summer. Most of them are on small farms about 10 to 16 acres.

The older children have sugar beets. We visited each garden four times during the Summer and gave them points for the work. They can accumulate a total of 100, and the one receiving the most points for the Summer is given a small prize.

They also have books very similar to ours in which they draw a diagram of the garden and record the number of hours they worked. Some of the gardens are at the small schools and the school masters help them with the work. They take some of the produce home and some of it is used by the girls in the school kitchens.

THE SCHOOLS are very interesting and they all have complete kitchens and work shops. Boys and girls start using them about 11 years of age and are very adept by the time they finish school at 14.

They go to school six days a week and have a much more in-

Will Rogers' Daughter Weds

LAS VEGAS, Nev., Oct. 2.—General MacArthur's one-time stepson is honeymooning today with Mary Rogers, only daughter of the late Will Rogers.

The bridegroom is Walter B. Brooks III, 36, son of Mrs. Louise Cromwell Brooks MacArthur Atwill, who was married to MacArthur from 1922 to 1929, and grandson of the late Mrs. E. T. Stotesbury, Philadelphia society leader.

Brooks and Miss Rogers, 33, were married Friday in Little Church of the West in Hotel Last Frontier by the Rev. Albert C. Melton, a Congregational minister.
